

On the Brink of 2015: A Shift in Focus from Education for All to Learning for All

February 28 & 29, 2012 8am – 5pm

Pavillon Desmarais, 55 Laurier East, 12th floor

University of Ottawa

The Education for All goals have guided unprecedented attention to basic education around the world for more than a decade. But how do we move beyond quantity issues to address the goal that perhaps has the most lasting impact – the quality of education?

Members of the Canadian Global Campaign for Education invite you to join us and our exciting panel of guests to a forum addressing important questions in learning achievement. During these two days, participants will look at specific contexts where best practices are emerging to ensure Learning for All, including:

- gender equality and girls' education
- learning outcomes and literacy
- teacher training and development

Participants will also discuss the unique role that Canada and Canadian civil society can play in ensuring Learning for All.

Keynote Address:

Hon. Michaëlle Jean, UNESCO Special Envoy for Haiti, Chancellor, University of Ottawa
